Manavlok is one of the 40 members from India. This forum is a platform for discussing Best Practices and new ideas for issues related to water. Water is a very critical issue for India's population of 1.2 billion people, and hence, it becomes important to be part of such an important body. Being part of such a platform, will surely help the organization in the future.

Founder's Message

If one looks at the role and purpose of Manavlok, it will be easy to understand why Manavlok was established. The goal of the organization is to try to reshape the prevalent socio-economic conditions. Beed is a drought-prone district. The issues for people living below the poverty line are quite different and unique. The effort is to solve these questions with the help of donors, foreign contributions and the Government. If Kharif harvest is not as per expectations, the marginal and landless farmers migrate to work as labourers in sugarcane fields. Their issues are also unique and Manavlok is striving to solve them. Till now, Manavlok has dug hundreds of wells to help marginal farmers. Hundreds of farmers were given electric motors and million of feet of pipelines so that water from the well reaches their farms. Similarly, thousands of seeds and fertilizers are loaned out to the farmers. Because of this, several families have crossed the poverty line and are now living more happily.

Women have some of their unique issues. To tackle that, Manaswini Mahila Prakalp was started, which is now benefitting hundreds of women. Through this, women are given training for small scale business. Along with that, Manaswini is also working in health and education sector. Women are grouped to form SHGs and are given micro-loans from small businesses and enterprises.

Manavlok is working on water conservation since last 36 years. Like Holna River Project, efforts are on to revive other rivers. Manavlok is working against poverty, superstition, and for women empowerment. Different projects are going on to tackle these issues.

Secretary's Message

People working in NGOs do not work for money but they work out of a social conscience to help the society is something I have realized. Manavlok has started special projects to help farmers, agricultural labourers, and women. Because of this, the satisfaction seen on those faces cannot be worded. Very few people who work get such satisfaction out of the work they do.

My contact with rural area has increased in last five years, because of which I noticed some pertinent issues plaguing rural area. Solving those issues is a big challenge that lies in front of us. Couple of people cannot solve these issues, but proper teamwork is needed. Manavlok is striving to make such a team. The whole community can come together and work, rather than just an individual. I am searching for people who can work together as a community.

If there are people who work based on a particular thought, then the transformation picks up pace; or else there's seldom any transformation. Many organizations were formed in the country, but very few of them have been able to successfully transform their surroundings. I strive to work together with everyone to make Manavlok one of those successful organizations.

Vision

In order to achieve equality, from collective and creative work, in the life of women, landless laborers and marginal farmers," MARATHWADA NAVNIRMAN LOKAYAT " Manavlok " was established in 1982.

Ambajogai taluka in Beed district, similar to other talukas in Marathwada, is drought-prone. The work initially started with ten villages, has now reached farmers from 133 villages of Ambajogai, Kej, Majalgaon, Parli and Dharur taluka. All the villages are making efforts to achieve 'Gram Swaraj' as envisioned by Mahatma Gandhi. Across the region, economy is directly depended on agriculture. Due to lack of industrialization, other avenues have not opened up. Thus, the region is totally dependent on rainfall and farmers have no other option but to wait for monsoon. The marginal and landless, which are the most likely to be affected, migrate to sugarcane fields. The number from Beed district itself is a staggering 3.5 lakhs people every year, with at times 90% of the village migrating.

Mission

"Development from people's participation" is the foundation of Manavlok's work. Various problems of rural society are entangled into each other. To solve all these issues, Manavlok's main role is to harness local human energy and create synergy, help marginal farmers, labourers, and women achieve economic stability, run various programmes to enable holistic development, and giving due importance to physical activities. While achieving the objectives, it is a conscious effort to ensure that the number of landless, poor farmers do not increase. While fully believing in human power, one cannot afford to ignore science and technology in today's modern age. Science has enabled lot of avenues to harness human power. Keeping this in mind, Manavlok has adopted science and technology as a medium and is consciously using it.

Objectives

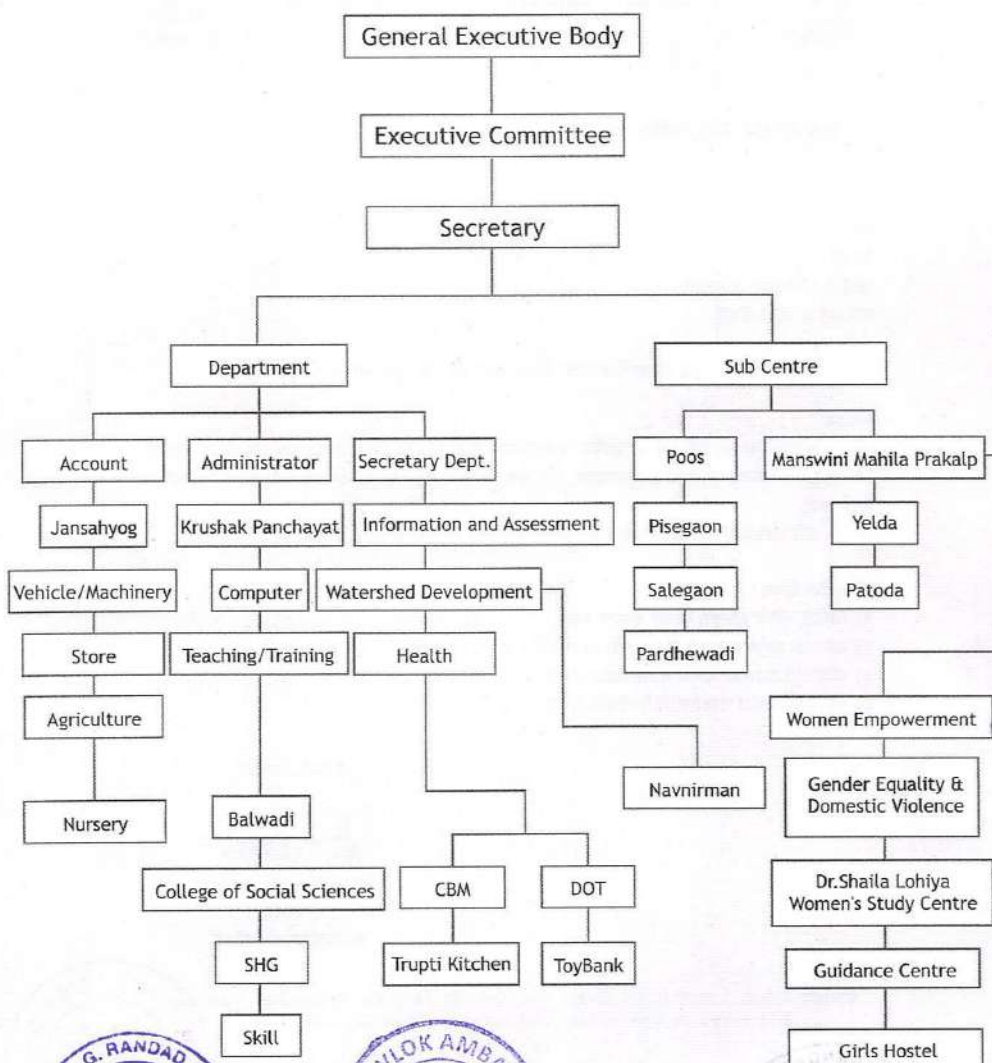

- To stop all kinds of migration.
- To help farmers beat poverty
- To make new avenues available for women for their holistic development
- To raise social status.
- To maintain nature's balance and implement various programmes for it.
- To work with Government in adopting new policies in order to catalyze rural development
- To help in development of agriculture by ensuring 'equitable water distribution'.
- To use natural methods for farming, as far as possible.
